Bank President In Chicago Kills Self

(CHICAGO, March 10.—(By the Associated Press))—The Logan Square Trust and Savings Bank, capitalized at $200,000, and having deposits of $2,700,000, was closed today while the death by shooting yesterday of Fred W. Popp, its president, was investigated and state bank examiners looked into the institution's finances.

The bank's directors in an emergency meeting last night announced the Logan Square was solvent.

Mr. Popp's body was found early yesterday in his small coupe on a lonely road near here.

In a pocket were found cancelled checks for $61,000 all drawn, made payable to and endorsed by Paul W. Popp, a son, secretary and treasurer of Logan Square Bank.

That was a detail in connection with the financier's death that first came to the attention of state bank examiners.

Mr. Popp had been shot through the head and a pistol containing an expended cartridge, was found nearby.

Early today the bank president's son, Paul, explained to investigators that he had given the cancelled checks to his father prior to his departure for California two months ago. He said the $61,000 in cancelled checks were drawn on his personal account at the Republic National Bank at St. Louis.

"It was my own personal account," he said. "I don't wish to talk about that." He declined to discuss the amount further, adding that the St. Louis bank was not a correspondent for the Logan Square Trust and Savings Bank.

What's Going On In The World

BY CHARLES P. STEWART

EUROPE look very much like getting back to conditions which led up to the World War.

Primarily the last great conflict was between Germany and England. It may not seem so after the fact, because so many other issues were dragged in. But every close student of the situation could see what was coming eight or ten years before it happened.

It was evident that Germany was determined to grow and that England was determined to prevent here from growing, because she could grow only at England's expense.

be drawn into the struggle, but plenty of people foresaw that France and Russia and Italy and the Balkan nations and, of course Austria-Hungary would.

True, a great many who saw perfectly well what the tendency was, didn't believe there actually would be a war. They thought civilization had progressed too far for such a thing to be possible. But they were aware that England's race to keep ahead and Germany's race to catch up were leading, logically, in that direction.

Their interests conflict. WELL: It's the same today, except that now, instead of being England and Germany, it's England and France.

Their interests conflict. Nothing could be worse. A quarrel can be patched up, but a conflict of interests can't.

The friction between England and France isn't very serious yet, but if things go on as at present, it will get more and more so. Probably it will be ten or twenty years before the sparks begin to fly. But sooner or later they will.

Of course this is assuming that France goes ahead with her policy of today and that it works.

Nothing could be clearer than that she aims to expand, and nothing can be more certain that, if she succeeds in doing it, she will have England to reckon with.

Few Bonds Missing From Bank Located

SPRINGFIELD, O., March 10.—(By the Associated Press)—With but $130,000 accounted for of the "more than $600,000" worth of Liberty Bonds taken from the Springfield National Bank by A. H. Penfield, defaulting cashier, federal officials today were concentrating on running down clues on the whereabouts of the remaining amount. The $130,000 in bonds were uncovered in sales of $50,000 worth from a bank in Cincinnati and of $80,000 from a Columbus bank.

Investigators here to the effect that Penfield had loaned a large amount of bonds through the Cleveland Discount Company, now in the hands of receivers, have been denied.

With the fact that only a small amount of bonds have been discovered, federal officials are more convinced that Penfield worked with an accomplice, probably a man in another city.

Penfield will be placed in jail here not later than Monday, according to United States Marshal Devaney, unless he furnishes the $25,000 bond set at his hearing Thursday. Although the defaulting cashier is still weak from loss of blood in his attempted suicide by slashing his wrists, Dr. W. B. Quinn, who examined the man last night, says that he ought to be strong enough to be moved Monday.

Bank examiners here refused to talk until their investigations are completed.

Operatives of the department of justice here declare that the Springfield National Bank case is the largest of its variety with which they have come in contact. They say that the ramifications of the Penfield manipulations may involve many men before the affair is finally wound up.

Capitol Jokes

By Florian Lampert
U. S. Representative From Wisconsin, Sixth District

LIKE the old story of the Scotchman and the American. They were traveling in a railway carriage in Scotland.

The American took out his pipe and asked the Scot for a match. Grudgingly the latter dug one up and laid it on the sill of the car window beside the American.

"Thanks," smiled the visitor.

He watched the Scot all his own pipe from a package of very good tobacco, then began to feel in his own pockets and finally observed:

"Goeh, that's funny! I don't seem to have any tobacco."

"Then," said the Scotchman, "ye'll no need the match"—and recovered it from where it lay on the window sill.

Y., March 10.—(By the Associated Press)—Search for Leopold Minkin, three-year old son of city Judge Leopold Minkin, who was kidnapped from his home here Thursday afternoon by Mary Conklin, a newly employed nurse maid, shifted to Bennington, Vermont, where a woman and a boy resembling the missing child, left a trail.

A description of maid and boy have been broadcast by radio.

Authorities believe the girl's long stay for a child led her to kidnap the Minkin boy in hope of rearing him as her own.

Cashier Shoots Himself

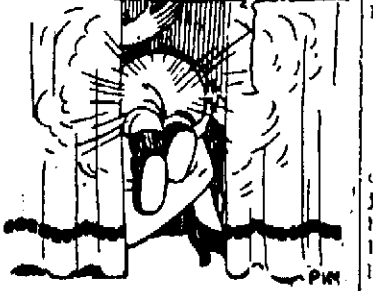

CENTERBURG, O., March 10.—(By the Associated Press)—Lemott M. Dalley, vice president, and cashier of the First National Bank here, was found with a bullet hole in his head in his barn late last night. In the hay mow of the barn was found a revolver.

The Knox county coroner, who is making an investigation, said today he did not believe Mr. Dalley was a victim of suicide.

Officials of the bank said there is no shortage in funds of the bank so far as they know.

Bandits Shoot At Mayor

McGUFFEEY, O., March 10.—(By the Associated Press)—A bullet grazed the head of Mayor J. H. Quint and Ralph Shilling, school superintendent here, was shot in the arm when two men held up the W. L. Thomas and Company store here at 8:30 Friday night. There were nine persons in the store when two bandits entered and ordered them to hold up their hands. Shilling was slow in responding and was shot.

While one thug stood guard the other got $500 from the cash register and took a $1,200 diamond ring from the band of T. G. Thomas, manager of the store. Thomas fired at the pair as they fled to their automobile, but did not hit either of them.

Man, Carrying Ether To Cure Cold, Arrested

NEW YORK, March 10.—(By the Associated Press)—Sixty passengers on a Seventh Avenue subway train were overcome early today by ether escaping from a can carried by Richard Chanorro, a young South American, who told the police he was taking it home for a cold.

When the train pulled in at the 96th street station, practically every passenger in one car was swooning and some women were hysterical. Two passengers were removed to a hospital. Chanorro was arrested.

The train was jammed with late after-theater crowds, but the fumes were confined to one car. When the two passengers who were the most seriously overcome, were carried from the car to the platform, police were summoned to preserve order.

Soon after Chanorro entered the train the pungent odor of ether permeated the car and the men and women became ill. Some of those standing dropped to the floor unconscious. A patrolman and a detective who were passengers and partly overcome, saw Chanorro holding a tin can and traced the escaping fumes to it. When he attempted to walk away they pounced upon him.

The can weighed a quarter of a pound and was labeled "ether."

Chanorro also had a bottle of ether in his pocket. In broken English he told the police he had a bad cold and was taking ether for it.

Sells Suits In Jail

DETROIT, MICH., March 10.—(By the Associated Press)—Charles Grumley, an Elkhart, Indiana, tailor, is in jail here charged with wife desertion, but he has not lost out entirely on the pre-Easter trade. The profits are to be returned to Grumley's clientele in the form of delicacies not listed on the jail menu.

Still Explodes; Two Killed

Swindler Arrested

CLEVELAND, O., March 10.—(By the Associated Press)—A man who police say admits he has defrauded fourteen Cleveland people, was to appear in police court today on charges of swindling after he had been trapped by 18-year-old Mary Keegan, last night, and arrested by detectives after informing the girl she had won a lot in a raffle and said $25 was needed to pay for the abstract.

Miss Keegan, becoming suspicious, notified the police, and when the man arrived at her home last night, he found a detective instead of the cash awaiting him.

CLEVELAND, O., March 10.—(By the Associated Press)—Mrs. Josephine Dordana, 32, and her nine-months baby were dead today and police are searching for a boarder at their home said to be the owner of an illicit liquor making outfit that exploded in the attic of the house late yesterday, fatally burning the woman and infant. The baby died a short time later.

The mother died this morning. After questioning, Louis Dordana, husband of the dead woman, who said he was down stairs when the explosion took place, police declared Mrs. Dordana was holding the infant in her arms and supervising the still's operation when the blast occurred, showering her with the boiling liquid and wrecking the 50 gallon apparatus.

Denies He's Embezzler

ST. LOUIS, MO., March 10.—(By the Associated Press)—George J. McKay, 42 years old, said to be under indictment at Cleveland, O., on charges of embezzling $95,000 from two companies, was under arrest here today, held for officers from that city.

John Crowley, an investigator from Cleveland, said he had trailed McKay through the United States and Mexico since he left Cleveland eight months ago. McKay denied the charges and announced his intention to waive extradition proceedings.

Asserting he was the victim of a quarrel between A. J. Harvey and George Harvey, brothers, and real estate brokers, of Cleveland, McKay declared he became vice president of the Middle States Discount Company at a salary of $18,000 a year. He added that the company became involved in difficulties and that he was requested to leave Cleveland because he "knew too much."

Police said McKay was charged with embezzlement of $75,000 from the Discount Company and $20,000 from the Born Steel Range Company.

"Uncle Joe" Cannon Back Under Own Roof

DANVILLE, ILL., March 10.—(By the Associated Press)—"Uncle Joe" Cannon, the patriarch of congress, was back under his own roof here today, to rest, having definitely retired from public service.

Only a knot of casuals saw the veteran statesman, tired, pale and walking slowly on the arm of a friend, although none the less jaunty despite his 77 years, leave the train.

In deference to Uncle Joe's wishes, Danville did not turn out with bands and decorated automobiles to welcome him. But just as soon as he was rested up, the folks are planning to blow the lid off the town to show Uncle Joe what the home folks think of him.

The railroad equipment on that first ride to congress did not quite measure up to that of the present, but then it was not so bad after all, said Uncle Joe.

He would not part with his rakish black hat for another five years, at least.

"A fellow down at Washington wanted me to give him this hat, and buy me another, but I have worn it only five years and its good for another five yet," was one sentiment—dismissing remark.

"This country is a hell of a success," opined Uncle Joe, when he pressed for some formal statement.

"Just let that stand as all the interview I care to give out. I'm not giving interviews anymore. I'm out of commission now anyway, and I'm going home to rest, that's what I'm home to do—nothing else."

The Liberal Man Is Often The Thrifty Man

Many people make the mistake of confusing thriftiness with stinginess.

On the contrary the thrifty man is often most liberal. His home is usually one of the best and he provides every luxury for his family. Thrift to him means careful, planned spending and systematic and regular savings deposits.

Thrift is always successful—no one ever regretted being thrifty.

Boys' and Girls' Club Work

Club work among Ohio Boys and Girls has grown by leaps and bounds since 1916, when the work began in this state, until last year 20,870 Ohio farm youngsters worked in farm and home projects under the direction of the Agricultural Extension Service of the Ohio State University.

Products raised or made by the children are valued at $343,704, according to current market prices. Prizes valued at $41,000, derived entirely from donations of banks, fair boards, farm bureaus and like groups were distributed to the boys and girls who had the best records.

The children were scattered over 87 of the 88 counties in Ohio. They worked under the immediate direction of nineteen hundred and fourteen volunteer local leaders—farm men and women sufficiently interested in the effort to give their time to its development.

Club enrollments for 1923 are now under way, and it is expected that 25,000 children will start projects this spring.

Poultry, Food and Pig Clubs are assured in Scioto County this year, as enrollment in these three projects are well under way in several communities. The organization of the poultry clubs, of which there will be a big increase over last year, is receiving most attention at this time, as all poultry clubs should be organized by April 1st.

The communities in which poultry clubs are being formed are: Haverhill, Otway, Jefferson Twp., Lucasville, Sedan, Union Twp., Empire, South Webster, and possibly one or two others. Haverhill, Otway and Jefferson Twp. conducted successful poultry clubs last year, the first in the county.

Pig and Food clubs have been functioning in Scioto County for the past four years, with increasing interest each year.

The people interested in giving their time in organizing the Poultry Clubs throughout the county are: Mr. D. S. Lamb, Haverhill; E. B. Lange, Empire; C. C. Potts, South Webster; Mrs. Gaylord Preston, Jefferson Twp.; M. O. Maddy, Otway; Mrs. D. Clark and Miss Elizabeth Oney, Union Twp.; F. S. Alley, Lucasville; Mrs. Dora Campbell and Miss Cornelia McJunkin, Sedan.

Any boy or girl living in one of these communities, who is interested in growing chicks, should see one of these folks, from whom full information may be secured relative to the requirements of poultry club work. All boys and girls between the ages of 10 and 18 on January 1, 1923, are eligible.

Health Leaders Meet

Leaders from five communities met with Miss Wanda Przybylska, Health Specialist Ohio State University, Friday at the Farm Bureau office for instructions in the health project, "Home Care of the Sick." Those present were Mrs. John Willey and Miss Elizabeth Oney, Union Twp.; Meadames J. F. Woodell and A. E. Miller, Lucasville; Enos Moore, Charles Heit and Russell Browne, Sunshine; Albert Dadds, Sedan; Fred Mootz and Miss Pearl Mootz, Empire.

These leaders will organize their communities into smaller units, selecting two ladies for each group, to whom they will give the instructions received from the health specialist. They, in turn, are to pass the instructions on to their respective groups, thus giving every community an opportunity of receiving the instructions.

The object of this project is to give women some of the most simple information in care of the sick and first aid, so that with the guidance of a physician they can nurse intelligently their sick and could also apply the first aid in emergencies.

Things discussed at the first meeting are:

1. Making and changing bed with the patient in it.
2. Changing night-gown and giving a bath to a bed patient.
3. Daily routine and little things to make the patient comfortable.

This meeting is the first of a series of four, one to be held each month. The next meeting with the specialist will be Wednesday, April 11th. The ladies will have organized their communities into smaller units by this time and held their first meetings.

WHAT'D THAT SPELL O' PNEUMONY YOU HAD FINE YEARS AGO SET YOU BACK?

"If I thought Dr. Mopps' bill wouldn't come in this month I'd buy an automobile," said Tipton Bud, this mornin'. Dr. Mopps has been tinkering with th' Bud family for years, an' like lots o' other doctors he's slow about sendin' out his bills. They say doctors are only able t' collect about as much as a corner grocery, but we guess that only applies t' general practitioners that jump out o' bed at all hours o' th' night an' go wherever they called. We've never heard of a specialist with golf hours losin' anything but his car. O' course a specialist may make a cut rate, or trim a bill t' suit a patient but he don't take any more chances than a national bank. An' why shouldn't a great doctor that saves our life, that makes a good, neat job o' liftin' a kidney, or remountin' a lung, be promptly paid fer it? We kin think o' no meener thing, next t' returnin' a new white vest after wearin' it, then beathin' a good, patient doctor that's restored us t' health an' vigor. We're mighty careful t' pay up an' not have our light an' gas cut off, but when it comes t' our wind we hain't so particular. Some folks look fer a cheap doctor jest th' same as they look fer a cheap plumber, an' we don't know which is th' worst. "What did that spell o' pneumonia you had five years ago set you back? My wife's got it purty bad an' I wuz jest wonderin' what it would cost t' pull her out o' it?" we heard a feller ask in th' other day. Tipton Bud an' his wife have been taking treatments o' one kind an' another for years. We kin remember as long ago as twenty years they wuz afraid t' git a planner fer fear Dr. Mopps' bill would come in. Then later they hesitated about buildin' a porch fer fear it might show up. Erer' day they expect th' mail man t' bring th' bill. They want t' know what it is so they kin figure on how t' go ahead. They need clothes an' wallpaper an' a new pump an' lots o' things. They've never been out o' town. They'd like t' see somethin' before they die. Once o' twice they've kind o' hinted that they'd like t' see t'le up; but Doc only grunted an' kept on comin' an' comin'. Th' window sills are full o' bottles an' ever' drawer in th' house is filled with pink an' white tablets. Mrs. Bud says she'd feel well an' strong 'cept fer that bill. "If we only had some idear o' what it would be like we'd feel better. As it is we're so unsettled an' hampered. We're so anxious t' have it over with an' begin life anew." Waitin' fer a doctor bill is jest like waitin' t' be sentenced. (Copyright National Newspaper Service)

SALVATION ARMY CONTINUES ITS GOOD WORK; MORE FUNDS NEEDED

The work of the Salvation Army is needing a reimbursement of funds and a campaign is being planned for the next few weeks by a committee under the leadership of Chairman Henry H. Winter.

The work of the Salvation Army in Portsmouth is not fully appreciated it is thought by many because of the unassuming way in which it is being carried on. The splendid work of this organization is reaching the lives of many of the city's unfortunate, and Adjutant and Mrs. W. H. Phillips are carrying on the enterprise in a most successful manner.

Eight thousand dollars is needed to replenish the diminished treasury of the organization, and committees will visit the generous citizens of the community within the next few days to solicit funds.

The following report recently compiled by Adjutant Phillips, shows the splendid work being done by the Army in this city:

Report of Salvation Army for one year:

Number of women and children furnished with bed and meals, 145; number of men furnished with bed and meals, 430. Total number of beds 575. Total number of meals 1018. Number of families furnished with food, clothing and shoes, 150; number of hours spent in visitation,

Soot on heating surfaces will prevent transfer of heat. Heating surfaces should be kept clean and if soot is deposited, the cause should be found and corrected. Scale or sediment inside of heating surfaces will also prevent transfer of heat.

Heaters should be drained frequently.

Remember that burners should be clean to give best results and should also be adjusted to give short blue flames at all times. Yellow flames deposit soot. If the tips of the flames are too low, the transfer of heat is not efficient.

If the utensil is placed low on the flames so that it touches the pale blue parts, poisonous gases are produced. The best results are obtained when the outer parts of the flame touch the utensil and spread out slightly.

Constable Earl Cochran of Wheelersburg, who operates out of Squire P. C. Rightmire's and B. A. Jaynes' court in that village, states that all speeders he has nabbed have been collected from all money he has turned into the proper channels.

Money Loaned On Permits

NEW YORK, March 10.—(By the Associated Press)—Testimony indicating that New York banks had loaned $600,000 for purchase of liquor from distilleries on withdrawal permits mysteriously taken from the office of Harold L. Hart, former state prohibition director, has been given at the trial of Hart and 14 other defendants, accused of conspiracy to defraud the United States by violating the Volstead act.

James B. Jones, assistant prohibition commissioner at Washington, testified yesterday that William A. Orr, one of the defendants, had asked him to rescind his cancellation of 300 permits so that banks could realize on their loans.

Jones said Orr mentioned the Kentucky Distilleries and Warehouse Company, of Louisville, as involved in these permits.

Rain Made By Planes

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(By the Associated Press)—Rain making by use of the airplane has been demonstrated to be practical in experiments conducted at the Dayton, Ohio, army air station, Brigadier General William Mitchell, of the army air service, said in an address here last night. The experiments, he said, were being continued by scientists with the use of army air equipment in order to perfect the process.

As described by General Mitchell, the experiments consisted of sending up an airplane loaded with fine sand which had been charged with positive electricity. When the sand was shot into the clouds a precipitation was induced, he said, by the contact of the positive electricity in the sand with the negative current in the clouds.

Seeks To Enjoin Judges

COLUMBUS, O., March 10.—(By the Associated Press)—As a taxpayer and citizen, Labdon L. Forchheimer, assistant city attorney of Cincinnati, today filed suit in the supreme court against all common pleas judges of Hamilton county, seeking to enjoin them from appointing a trustee for the Cincinnati Southern Railway. The action is to test the constitutionality of certain provisions of the state law abolishing the superior court of Cincinnati, which, until its discontinuance, named the railroad trustees.

Harding Motors Thru Jungle

STUART, FLA., March 10.—(By the Associated Press)—Under favorable skies President Harding and his companions were scheduled for a round of golf here today before resuming their cruise on the houseboat Pioneer, to Palm Beach, where they expect to be tonight.
The president's golf took a novel turn yesterday when he anchored above Vero, in the Indian river and motored through a palmetto jungle to Rio Mac golf course. He found himself among a colony of Cleveland residents, and after 18 holes he motored with his party to Fort Pierce to board his boat which had continued on to that point.

Market News

New York Stocks

NEW YORK, Mar. 10.—Resumption of yesterday's late profit taking, particularly in the low priced oils, coppers and some of the non-dividend paying rails, coincident with the appearance of fresh buying power in other groups imparted an irregular trend to opening prices in today's stock market.

American Tobacco advanced 1 1/2 points but Union Copper dropped a point and heaviness was noted in Copehden, California Petroleum and Chesapeake and Ohio.

Another sharp advance in Market Street Railway issues on overnight announcement that New York bankers were leaving for California next week to arrange the sale of the property to the City of San Francisco was one of the features of the early trading.

The preferred and the prior preferred each advanced three points and the second preferred 2 1/2. Hupp Motors, up one, assumed leadership of the motors, Maxwell A. and Stewart Warner improving fractionally. Stromberg Carburetor dropping a point. United retail stores advanced 1 1/2 and Transcontinental Oil one. Atlantic Coast Line dropped a point.

Foreign exchange opened firm, demand sterling selling just under $4.70 and French francs being quoted around 66.65 cents.
Speculators apprehension over the possibility of higher money rates next week in view of income tax payments and expanding commercial needs, combined with the failure of operators for the advance to make much headway after several days of reactions, induced further profit taking and short selling in today's stock market.

Losses of 1 to 3 points were quite common among the independent steels, foods, oils, equipments, coppers and some of the ordinarily inactive rails. As usual however, speculative strength, notably tobacco, Stewart Warner, Hupp Motors, Mack Truck and the Market Street Railway issues, held gains running as high as five points. The closing was heavy. Sales were 500,000 shares.

Chicago Grain And Provisions

CHICAGO, Mar. 10.—With commission house buying rather general and with Liverpool quotations showing an advance, the market here had an upward tendency during the early dealings. Bulls put emphasis to the ascent in value of the commodity list as a whole and on possibilities of crop security in the near future. The opening which ranged from 1/2 to 3/4 higher, to 1 1/2, was followed by slight further gains and then a little reaction.

Corn developed independent strength, influenced more or less by bullish views expressed by a leading trader. After opening 1/2 to 3/4 higher, May 74 1/2 to 74 3/4, the market continued to rise.

The close was easy at 1/2 to 3/4 net decline with May 1.19 1/2@1.19 1/2 and July 1.14 1/2@1.14 1/2.

Oats sympathized with other cereals, starting unchanged to 1/4 higher, May 44 1/2 to 45, and later scoring a slight advance all around.

Provisions lacked support despite higher quotations on hogs.
The close was easy at 1/2 net decline to a like advance with May 74 1/2 to 74 3/4.

Girl Has Jaw Broken, Other Occupants Escape

A broken neck and fractured skull suffered by Robert Edgar Semones, 26, New Boston, better known to his many friends in New Boston as Ed Semones, caused instant death last night about 7:25 o'clock, when he drove his new touring car into a main line street car on Walnut street, East Portsmouth. Miss Agnes James, 17, of 3924 Stanton avenue, a niece of Semones, suffered a broken jaw, while Mrs. Estel C. Counts and nine months old baby daughter, Hazel Pauline, suffered slight injuries in the same accident. The machine and street car came together with a loud crash, as both were "traveling" at a good rate of speed. The other occupants of the machine were fortunate to escape with as slight injuries as they did, considering the wrecked condition of the automobile.

Soon after the accident Coroner Virgil Fowler visited the scene and in searching the automobile found a small bottle in a pocket of a door, the bottle containing only a few drops of moonshine. Later an autopsy was held and the examination showed the young man had been drinking.

The scene of the accident was in front of the home of J. D. Warder, 2151 Walnut street, in the block east of Chestnut street and in the square just this side of the New Boston corporation line. Semones was driving west on Walnut and the street car was headed east. According to witnesses, Semones was driving with the left wheels of the machine over the north rail of the track and it was thought that he would turn off the track before the street car got to him. This he failed to do and it was too late for the street car to stop when the motorman finally realized that the driver was not going to turn. Mrs. Counts and Miss James also thought Semones was going to turn to the right to get off the track, but today said that Semones was probably under the impression that he was clear of the track.

Ollie Howard, of 3100 Walnut street, was another eye-witness to the fatal accident. He was standing at an upstairs window looking out when he saw the collision. He tells the same story as the motorman and passengers in the machine.
Mrs. Counts and baby are from Carter, Ky. They are visiting her sister, Mrs. Lawson James, of Stanton avenue. Semones was married to a Miss Sadie James of New Boston and was well known. Yesterday evening he called at the Dennis S. James home, 3924 Stanton avenue, where Mrs. Counts and baby were guests for several hours, and invited his niece, Miss Agnes James, and Mrs. Counts and baby to take a short ride. Semones drove west on Stanton to West avenue, and from West avenue turned west onto Rhodes, which merges into Walnut street at the corporation line. There were no machines parked along the way, according to Miss James and Mrs. Counts. Semones was driving fairly fast. Miss James and Mrs. Counts noticed the street car as he came over the rise in the street at Plum street, two squares west of the scene of the accident. Mrs. Counts was riding in the front seat with Semones, while Miss James and the baby occupied the rear seat.

According to Motorman Arch Adams, he was about two minutes late on his east bound run and was sending his car along at a good rate of speed. It picked up momentum in going down the grade of Walnut street east of Plum. He says that he expected the machine to swerve to one side before the car got close and therefore did not put on the brakes until he realized that the driver was not going to turn. The street car, with the brakes applied, moved forward about two full car lengths before coming to a stop. The collision caused the automobile to bound off to one side of the track and turn half way around. When the street car crew and passengers got to the machine they found Semones on the paved street by the side of the machine with blood pouring from his nose, mouth and ears. Drs. Albert Berndt and A. B. Mills were called, but when they arrived they found the young man was dead and that a fracture of the skull had caused death. Later an examination of the body showed the neck broken. Either of the injuries would have caused instant death, according to Coroner Virgil Fowler, who ordered the body removed to the Lynn morgue. Semones' injuries were probably caused when his head struck the paved street. He was hurled from the side of the machine.

Mrs. Counts, who was thrown about half way through the windshield and Miss James and the Counts baby were assisted from the wreckage and made comfortable until the arrival of the physicians, who

ASTHMA
No cure for it, but welcome relief is often brought by
VICKS VAPORUB
Over 17 Million Jars Used Yearly

And if he is too trifling to furnish a home for you, he is not worth having.

My Dear Dolly—What do you think of a school teacher who will not give her scholars the grades which they deserve? It looks as though they are grading them by their clothes and popularity. How do they expect any scholar to get any place by them doing this? What should be done?

M. W.—Take the matter up with the principal of your school or the superintendent.

Dear Dolly—I want you to print this in the paper. I read a few nights ago where the Board of Health wants the property owners at the end of Tenth street to meet with them at the next meeting to talk over the matter of building houses on the dump there. Now Dolly, it is not a dump, and hasn't been for ten years, and if the Board wants to make a nuisance out of the houses that are built there, I think they should look after all the unsanitary conditions and people that have to live along the Scioto and Ohio River. People have been living along the river ever since Portsmouth was built. People live right on the dumps on Mill street and Union street and there is nothing said about it. On the banks of the Scioto river is a nice place to live as there is plenty of fresh air and sunshine, and it is just as healthy as any place in the city. If the Board of Health wants to do anything why don't they get rid of the slaughter houses and the rats and unsanitary vaults. We pay taxes to be protected and it is up to the Board of Health to see that conditions in the city are kept sanitary. We need houses in this town worse than any city in the state of Ohio, and I think that the poor people who own their little homes on the banks of the Scioto have these copies they may phone 830.

river should be let alone, and so after some of the others who are getting big rents for old shacks and unsanitary alley houses.

TAX PAYER.—If the premises surrounding these homes are not unsanitary, the Board of Health will not declare them a nuisance.

DISAPPOINTED, Jackson, Ohio.—I don't like to discuss such things in this department, as one opinion brings on another, and if I printed what you had to say about the others, I would have to print what they had to say about you, and there would be all kinds of discussions and nothing gained in the end.

M. F. C.—You did right in dismissing the girl, and you should not give in to take her back even if she does get mad or pout around about it. The girl is either ignorant or what you think she is, and she needs watching. You should also keep your eye on your husband and as soon as you are able, be ready to go with him when he starts out joy-riding.

BLUE EYES—I answered the other letters you sent me the same way that I am going to answer this one, and that is if you want to know, the man's name go and ask him or ask the woman who is always with him. If it is the man I think it is the woman is his mother. If not, it is his sweetheart, as they both have hair the same color.

J. H. READER—You don't need the name or addresses of the manager of the places mentioned. Just address your letter to the general manager or superintendent or whatever office he holds and he will get it all right. It isn't necessary to have the street address of big concerns. They usually have a box in the post office and will get all mail with their name on it.

TIMES READER—I think if you will call one of the greenhouses they can give you the desired information. I can't give it here.

A reader would like to have the February and March numbers of the "True Story Magazine." If any one has these copies they may phone 830.

THOUGHT BACK WOULD BREAK
Nothing Helped until She Began Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"When my baby was born," says Mrs. Posluszny, 106 High Street, Bay City, Michigan, "I got up too soon. I made me so sick that I was tired of living and the weakness run me down something awful. I could not get up out of bed mornings on account of my back; I thought it would break in two, and if I started to do any work I would have to lie down. I do not believe that any woman ever suffered worse than I did. I spent lots of money, but nothing helped me until I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I felt a whole lot better after the first bottle, and I am still taking it for I am sure it is what has put me on my feet."

If you are suffering from a displacement, irregularities, backache, nervousness, headache or any other form of female weakness you should write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women." It will send you free upon request. This book contains valuable information.

Establish Mystic Cult Where Kings Held Tryst

The famous Forest of Fontainebleau, near Paris, where ancient French monarchs held their trysts, now contains a beautiful temple of a new school of the occult, headed by a Greek mystic, and made up of a band of disciples of men and women which includes many of those famous in the old Russian court and others from society life in England. Striving to live a secluded and simple life, they hope to attain "soul emancipation." Only those visitors who wish to join the cult are permitted to enter. They are received at a beautiful villa, and if they convince the committee they are desirable they are enrolled as members. Within the wood is a gorgeous temple for study and meditation, a unique amphitheatre, with rare carpets and rugs, and pillows that will rival any other collection in the world.

Adventures Of The Twins

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

As Nancy and Nick walked through Apple-Pie Land they met once and he no longer slammed doors and upset chairs. The Mix-Up school also improved at once and said the alphabet from A to Z instead of from Z to A.

Cows ate grass in the fields while the whales returned to their proper place in the ocean.

The bakeryman's fire melted all the ice and his bread started to bake as it should.

The Cut-Out Lady turned into a lovely maiden and the chocolate cake dog with the pink-icing ears turned into a fine shepherd dog.

The bread-piller general turned back into a real soldier with a real gun and a real sword.

The Five-and-Ten-Dollar Store that said "Nothing Under," turned into a nice red Five-and-Ten-Cent store that said "Nothing Over," and everything was in the shape.

"Let's give three cheers for the Twins," cried Tommy, and the last thing the Twins heard as they departed were three loud hurrahs!

JACK DAW'S ADVENTURES

After the monster balloon eagle had carried Jack and Flip for several miles the bird settled down on a dark cloud and released his two passengers. Jack looked up and saw Copy Balloon also coming down. Then he saw, in the distance, a queer face made out of puffy clouds.

"What a funny face that is," shouted Jack to Copy. "What is it?" "Why, that's Mister South Wind," replied Copy. "He's the fellow we came to see." Then Mister South Wind was asked to show Jack how he made balloons. And, in an instant, from nowhere, seemed to come pretty balls of wind.

Mister South Wind would simply pull in his cheeks and then blow out real hard and lo, and behold, a balloon would start to appear. Copy explained that South Wind's breath was hot, and hot air rises. And so, as he filled a balloon with air it would rise right up and float around. (Continued.)

WOMEN JAM BIG TABERNACLE; HEAR STIRRING SERMON

Evangelist Anderson Urges All To Lead Life Free Of Sin

Every available seat was taken and many were turned away at the Tabernacle last night when "Women Only" was the order of the door-keeper, who had to send away several men who had not heard the announcement that no men would be admitted. The attendance was the largest of all meetings held so far. When every seat on the main floor was taken the women filled up the many vacant seats in the choir, and by the time the song service was half over there was not a seat to be had.

"Fool Women" was the subject announced for last night by Dr. George Wood Anderson and hundreds turned out to hear what he had to say on that unusual subject. It was another of those soul-touching messages that can come only from a speaker who is making it his life's work to bring others to Christ. With plainly illustrated facts, he drove home point after point from the text: "Thou speakest as one of the foolish women speaketh," taken from Job 2:10. The effect of his sermon was shown when he extended the invitation to come forward, and close to 300 women and girls came to the front and signified their intention of devoting their future life to the work of building up the Christian world.

Dr. Anderson said: "No woman's sphere ends with her home. It is wherever her loved ones go. A person is not judged by what they have in their head, but by the way they use it. One may have a fine education, but if she does not use sense in her living, she is merely an educated fool." These were only some of the many truths brought out by Evangelist Anderson last night.

In his sermon he pleaded for the mothers and young women to live a life free of sin, one that would be an example of Christianity. He urged each and everyone to consecrate themselves to the service of the Lord that His Kingdom may be extended.

The choir last night was composed of several hundred women, with Mrs. E. H. Dickey of the United Brethren church as the director. The choir rendered several special numbers. Mrs. George Wood Anderson presided at the piano. She gave several piano solo numbers. A woman's quartet of the First Christian church also sang. The quartet was composed of Mrs. Charles Brockman, Mrs. Elmer Fetter, Miss Bees True and Miss Marjorie Gerlach.

THE SERMON
"FOOL WOMEN"
(Text: "Thou speakest as one of the foolish women speaketh"—Job 2:10)
(Copyright, 1922, by George Wood Anderson)

One may have a well-trained intellect and yet without reason. Some think that the world is saved by ideas, or what people think; they are mistaken, for the world is saved by ideals, or what people do.

You have your head filled with the very best ideas and yet be absolutely worthless to your family, to your church, to your city, to your country and to your God.

The Bible contains the best thought in the world, and yet a Bible on the center table may amount to nothing and you can build a wall two miles thick and ten miles high, and it will not keep the devil out of your heart or away from your fireside. Ideas are worthless unless they are lived out in individual lives, and the very moment a good idea becomes embodied in a human life and a person begins to live according to it, his best teaching, that moment that person becomes an ideal for somebody else, and beholding that person everyone who sees it is thrilled and made better.

If you act like a fool, the world will judge you as a fool. You may have the thoughts of a philosopher, and if you act in a foolish manner, the world will call you a fool and you will have the influence of a fool. It isn't what you think that counts, it is what you do that counts, and conduct is ten thousand times more potent than thinking. Of course, you have to have high thinking. If you women want to be of use to your homes and to the world, you must begin to live out the very best thoughts you have and make the people see them in your lives.

When it comes to conduct, a woman has a good deal more sense than a man, ordinarily speaking. Women are quicker, have more sense, and as a general thing have better judgment, and when they try there is no one this side of heaven so wonderful, but when a woman does play the fool, there is no man on earth that can come within 10 miles of her.

Undoubtedly Job married a sensible woman. A man as strong of intellect, with as great a personality as he would not have chosen a weak woman for his companion, and yet when you see Job on the ash heap outside the city, feeling his back and moaning, and his wife jumping around in hysteria, boo-hooing and crying, saying: "Oh, Job, curse God and die," you see how low a fool a sensible woman can be when she comes to live out a good thought. No woman with good sense would talk that way to a man with the holl, Job was a remarkable man or he would never have made the calm answer that he did: "Thou speakest as one of the foolish women speaketh." To my mind that was a little more mild than the fool woman deserved.

Woman's Chief Interest

She speaks as a foolish woman who says that she is not interested in community and civic affairs. A woman's place may be in her home and unless a woman looks after the welfare of her home and keeps her children from spending their days on the devil's commons, she is a real menace to society. The worst enemy to our modern civilization is bad homes. A woman's place is at home, but her sphere of influence does not stop at her door step. A good woman must be interested in everything that concerns her husband and children. That includes the churches, the Bible schools, the public schools and public playgrounds, the public library, the games the children play, the theaters and the kind of plays they present, the moving-picture house and the films they flash on the screen. It is a woman's place also to know every brother and who are the procurers that make appeal to young girls and who are the ones that appeal to even boys of high-school age to patronize these places of demerit. That means the places of gambling, whether in the back room of a home or a fashionable club. This means also every street and alley in town where your boy or girl goes. I have no use whatever for the woman who is too good to go to the place of demerit.

You don't know what is going on in the world and you think everything is beautiful and then you turn your children out on the street and allow them to go out to some little club they have formed. I want to tell you whenever boys and girls form a club that their daddies and mothers cannot come to, you may understand that the devil is or soon will be the high priest of the institution. It has so proven in every town I have ever been in. Whatever concerns your boy whatever concerns your daughter, concerns you if you are a good mother; and this idea of saying, "My influence stops at home and I believe the home is the sphere of women" is nonsense. The women of this land will never come to their full measure of power until they are willing to go out on the streets and in the alleys and solve the social problems of the day.

Taking the pains to know what is actually going on here, the woman would rise with the power of righteous indignation and start such a work of reform as would stir the continent. Why shouldn't you do it? The children are yours and you have to bear the shame and heart-break of their wrongdoing, then why not know the conditions and then, regardless of consequences, start out to right the wrongs. There isn't any evil power or organization that can stand in the presence of a good woman when she starts out for God and the cause of right. Your place is in politics. You may not have wanted the ballot, but since the right of franchise, the greatest gift a republic can bestow, has been conferred upon you, and you have a voice in choosing the coming rulers and policy of the city, state and government, you cannot be a loyal citizen and refuse to vote. The person, man or woman, who stubbornly refuses to encourage honest and safe government, should not have the privilege of citizenship.

Among those who talk foolishly are those women who are never satisfied unless they get into the social shell that is just above the one in which they feel themselves. Their whole prayer during the night is, "Lord lift me up another shell." Their whole plan during the day is, "How can I climb up another shell?" and the result is they are preoccupied and fretful, they are extravagant and drive their husbands to the dogs.

Benedict Arnold's name is odious in our history. He betrayed his country to get money to meet his wife's extravagance. However small or large a man's salary is, a woman for the sake of her own and her family's happiness, ought to have sense enough to live within that salary.

"Did you know that neighbors have an automobile?" "It just seems like as if we never have anything," does anybody think that happiness consists in the number of dresses or the number of jewels or the number of automobiles? The fewer servants you have the happier you are. And what do you want to throw your children out into society too? You say, "I never had a chance when I was young and I have made up my mind that my children would get that chance." And what do you call a chance? Throwing them into the social life? That mother standing on the banks of the Ganges, throwing her baby for the crocodiles to eat and more good common sense than a mother who will throw her half-dressed girl into modern social life to be gazed and gossiped by men who are a lot of mouth and black at heart as any baby who walks the railroad tracks.

Fresh Air For Dresses

All the costume your daughter needs in modern society is sufficient knowledge of magic for her feet to tell the difference between a two-step and a waltz. All the language that she needs is to know how to bow to her and she can make her way any place in the world. There is a much-needed crusade for fresh air, but from what I observe society is something over doing the matter. When a society woman goes to the ball, she has a life free from artificiality as for their dresses and nothing but ink-blot and ink for conversation. It is about time for somebody to shut the window and draw the curtain. What often passes for "high society" is a cross between the stench of a latrine and the intellectuality of an insane asylum.

I remember one of these poor, helpless, little, insignificant, insignificant women who was sitting upon

Sparks From The Anvil Of George Wood Anderson

One can have a fine education but if she does not use sense in her living she is merely an educated fool.

A person is judged not by what they have in the head but by the way they use it.

A beautiful thought is of no value unless it is lived out, for it is then that the life becomes beautiful.

If you act like a fool the world will know you as nothing but a regular, ordinary fool.

Wherever your husband, or your son, or your brother goes there is your sphere.

A woman's sphere is wherever her loved ones go.

The jail is for the people who lead girls astray and not for the girls themselves.

It is the business of the women of every city to see that clean films are shown at their picture shows. There is nothing under the shining sun a woman can't do when she sets her mind to it.

This book judges you by what you do.

This book is of value only in so far as the people learn what the Bible says and then live it out in their own lives and the lives of those about them.

If there is ever a time when a wife needs good common sense it's when her husband has the boils. (Scripture ref. Job). No woman's sphere ends with her home.

OBSERVATIONS OF A REPORTER

(By A. P. Haight)

It's nice to be a reporter and observe things. About as many machines as usual. The tabernacle. Women's night. Can't go in. Just women. Subject "Fool Women." Wonder how many will be there. (I learn that the thing was packed, men. Don't say anything. We had a good meeting.)

Church. Men coming. It's filled. Evangelist arrives. Singer and pianist late. Can't leave the men. One takes the piano, another leads singing. Auditorium filled. Preachers to the front—as usual. Gee, a colored quartet. Make a hit. Motto on wall: "Fray, Plan, Push, for greater things." Jenkins arrives. Looks like he had been taking a nap. "Asleep at the switch." Novel way of putting appeal for collection. It works. Men do not respond when they are by themselves. Bunch of men hanging about the entrance to tabernacle. Can't get along with out the women and you can't—oh well, you can't you know you can't.

leaping over certain restrictions that modesty and decency have established to safeguard and protect our civilization, and see how close they can come to the crumbling brink of the volcano of indecency without losing their good name. They say that they do not care what people think of them so long as they know themselves to be good and true.

There is not a good woman here but knows that that argument is false, and to follow that philosophy means shame and everlasting disgrace.

It makes a big difference young woman what people think of your actions and the spirit of being a "good sport," however sincerely carried out, cannot overcome the detrimental effects of your folly.

This tendency manifests itself in the style of dress to which I have already paid my respects. You old women may dress as you please and make as big a fool of yourself as you desire, and I shall have nothing to say; but mothers ought to have sense enough to dress their daughters in a manner that the men in barber shop, cigar stands, poolrooms and club windows cannot make slightest remarks. There are girls as good and true and pure as the morning sun and light and girls into whose minds an improper suggestion never comes who are decked out by a thoughtless mother and sent down street to be the laughing stock of all the men in the community in which they live. Oh, women! have some sense about how you dress your daughters.

Mother and Daughter

Well, you say, evil is as evil thinks. You think evil and it is evil. It isn't your daughter's character I am talking about. I am talking about making your sweet daughter the laughing stock and the object of coarse jokes by obscene men of the town—and the town is full of them.

I know a young high school girl—not of this town—whose mother dressed her up and sent her to a school ball. The next day four of the boys were holding a conference discussing the girl and her dress. A friend of the family overheard their remarks and went to the father telling him what he had heard. The father was incensed and was going to wreak vengeance on the fellows when he happened to think that the fellows were not so much to blame as the fool mother who dressed her daughter and sent her out that way. If you cannot afford to buy enough goods for a full dress, in the name of God keep the old ones. I don't know much about dress making but from observation I take it that the less dress there is the more women are willing to pay for it, and it has gotten so now when you go to some social functions the only place a self-respecting decent man can look is at the ceiling.

This tendency manifests itself in the way in which women attend places of amusement and witness that which is coarse, vulgar and obscene and enter no protest but rather give it applause. No woman who cares for the son or daughter sitting at her side should be so enticed by her presence on a stage that she would not have minded in her own parlor with or without her presence. If you sanction vulgarity and indecency you must not be hurt or surprised when your children say and do that which is coarse or vulgar. Don't say you if you do not want the harvest.

This tendency to approach the crumbling brink of indecency is manifested by those who chafe at home restrictions and want to go out and see life. Let me see the other side of life. Let me see the underworld, and so day by day, they enter places of sin and shocking immorality and it is not long until they begin to

Life's Richest Beauty

If the quest for woman is for beauty she will find that life's richest beauty is reflected on the countenances of those whose hearts are the abiding places of the Christ spirit. If she is seeking power of influence, she will find that the services of God give her strength of character and power of influence not found anywhere else in all the world. If she wants happiness she will find that which will never end by being pure in heart and loyal in the love for Christ. No mother should ever be without the presence of Christ in her heart and home. No young woman for the sake of what pleasure she may receive in sin can afford to deny herself the strength and victory that only Christ can give in the coming seasons of strain and stress. They are sure to come and if, in the hour of trial one has no reserve of character to draw upon, everything having been eaten away by the consuming fires of worldliness and sin, how pitiful is the victim.

Sir Walter Scott in the famous story of Jerry Deans has shown the sustaining and triumphant power of righteousness. She was tempted to leave her wayward sister by a lie. It was what the world would call a very little lie, a mere glossing over the actual facts. With a mere deviation from the absolute truth she could

Men's Service Is Well Attended

(By A. F. Haight)

Last evening's double header came off in fine shape. The men stopping at the First Baptist church for their fellowship and the women going on to the tabernacle. The men filled the auditorium of the church at the corner of Galloway and Water and overflowed into the Sunday school rooms. Jenkins and Ackley, worn out by their efforts in four or five meetings a day, were a little late in arriving. Dr. C. E. Chandler took his place at the piano, while Rev. C. E. Severinghaus led the great chorus in song. He stated that he could not do as well as Jenkins but that if all helped "we'd have some music any way." And we did.

The evangelist, W. H. Harper, colored, who is conducting revival services among the colored churches of the city, and who is meeting with much success in his work here, came with a party of the members of the colored churches.

It was a delight to have a mixed quartet of the colored folks sing some of their favorite hymns. There is a melody in the voice of the colored race, it seems, that cannot be imitated by those of a lighter hue, so much was the quartet enjoyed by the men that the quartet was called back and they responded heartily with other songs.

Surrounded by the pastors of the various churches of the city and confronted by a great company of the white citizens of Portsmouth, Rev. Harper, choosing for his topic a call for a greater depth of spirituality, and taking as a basis for his speech, Rom. 12: 1-2, delivered a well worded, forceful sermon. It was interesting from many angles. He backed up his arguments and thoughts with many passages of Scripture, making plain his thought by illustrations from life not to be misunderstood.

WHAT A WOMAN OBSERVED AT THE NEW CRUSADE MEETING FOR WOMEN

(By Miss Eichelberger)

On reaching the corner of Waller and Galloway last night one experienced a true foretaste of the parting of the ways. As many men were coming as there were women going.

A regular stream of women pouring into the huge room.

The tabernacle packed, choir loft filled.

Younger girls giving the older women their places on the benches.

Girls as ushers. Fine—let's have them often.

A splendid choir leader. Jenkins must look well to his laurels.

Our pianist is wonderful—that piano is simply talking.

No need to be told to sit close tonight. They just have to—such a crowd.

Every seat taken. Women standing at back of room.

A regular rainbow of colors.

You should have seen the hats when they came off. It looked like the sparkling waves of the ocean.

Voices fine, singing unexcelled, music great.

A regular "no-man's land" (with one exception) with "us women" on our meeting last night.

The young women and girls rival the older women for honors as to the numbers and interest shown.

The most constant sight throughout the first half hour was the one of the great number of people hunting for seats.

A fine big girls' delegation from Selby's filling an entire front section.

Special music number splendid. Come back again, ladies' quartet from First Christian.

Women are naturally reverent. Every head lowered during the offering of the prayer.

Not a woman left till entire meeting was over.

Husbands waiting at entrance for their wives.

Truffle policeman directing the cars so as to enable the women to safely cross the street.

Evangelist Reached Hearts Of Women

(By Pearl V. Eichelberger)

The numbers coming forward are a perfect witness that the women are thirsting for the true message of the Christ, and again is proved that known truth that good women do appreciate the trust imposed in them for service in the kingdom of the Master. This was shown at the meeting for "Women only" at the big garage last night.

There is no question about the fact that Dr. Anderson can and does force home the truth of his message. Dr. Anderson's every word is a gem of priceless value.

Anderson teaches his storehouse of vivid experiences.

Into every word he puts force of his personality and the strength of his own faith. This linked with the priceless, unmeasurable strength of the love of God is proving once again that Jesus doth reveal unto those who will believe.

Staff is fulfilling instructions in withholding everything that can possibly be used for the president's return to St. Augustine, Florida, from the trip down the River Inlet. This probably will be within a fortnight.

President's Health Very Important

Some people may look askance at this abrupt detachment of a president of the United States from his official duties. They may see in the moving pictures of the house boat party, attired in the summer garb of Florida's winter colony, and may associate the Hardings with the leisurely folk who spend all the seasons in the sunshine of Newport or Palm Beach, but if there ever was a time when the health of a president was important, it is today.

Woodrow Wilson's tragic breakdown through overwork has left a definite impression on the minds of public men, but curiously enough they have not all heeded the warning. Attorney General Daugherty is a case in point. He is recuperating in Florida from what threatened to be a serious breakdown. Mr. Daugherty told the writer today that he had learned his lesson. He had never known what it was to be sick and had never hesitated to work eighteen hours a day without interruption. He scoffed at the idea that he might overwork.

It is true that the department of justice today is a busier department than it ever has been and the man at the head of it must take the responsibility for most of the acts done in his name. The enforcement of prohibition, the war fraud cases, the handling of claims growing out of the war and a thousand and one problems developing constantly through other phases of the war have made the job of an attorney general almost as active as that of the chief executive.

Mrs. Harding's collapse was indirectly due to the strain of entertainment. She overtaxed her strength in an attempt to be as democratic as possible. She succeeded in the latter but her health paid the penalty.

Many Officials In Poor Health

Secretary Hughes has been struggling with grip and Secretary Davis, who is now in Florida resting, has also been working too hard. Colonel Forbes resigned from the Veterans' Bureau because of ill health. Chairman Lasker of the shipping board has been burning the candle at both ends and is in Florida with the president. She overtaxed her strength after a recent experience with influenza as to be the chum of the president.

Public officials nowadays are still working at the same feverish pace they developed in war time. Their vitality is sapped and they are natural victims of colds and grip. The government has this winter been more handicapped by the illness of its personnel than at any time since the fatal flu epidemic in 1918. President Harding was weakened by his recent cold. Whatever the critics may say, Mr. Harding has learned enough about the presidency to convince himself that without a rest in winter and summer no human being can survive its terrible drain on mind and body.

save from the scaffold one who was dearer than life; but the young girl could not make herself believe that a lie is ever a safe cover, so she told the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth. Her sister was sentenced to death, then without delay she started to London. Between the hedgehogs over the white reads she trudged until finally with bleeding feet and exhausted form, it seemed that she would fall by the wayside. But on she pressed until the lights of London greeted her eyes. On into the city to the Queen's palace, where, overcoming every barrier, she stood at last in the presence of the queen. Then, as no advocate could plead, she beseeched the throne. She had a right there. Her loyalty for truth made her a fit companion for any monarch. Such eloquence was never heard within those palace walls, and the queen, yielding completely, gave the answer to her prayers. In the hour of struggle, Christ sustained her, strengthened her and gave her the vision of the absolute truth she could an armed uprising in the Ruhr.

No doubt it's true, there's a good deal of restlessness there, but the French have too obvious a reason to exaggerate for their accounts to be taken without liberal quantity of salt—they want an excuse for tightening their grip.

Most of the international political authorities are predicting some sort of a settlement of the Ruhr controversy before long, but it looks more every day as if the French meant to hang on for good. There may be so-called mediation, yes. France, however, as the plot works itself out, does not appear, quite so much as she did at first, to have gone off at half-cock when she seized this German territory. It she had some well-laid plan in mind at the time, it isn't likely that any conference of outsiders will persuade her to give it up.

French Expansion Policy

FOR that matter, French and German "big business" show signs of getting closer together than they were.

There was quite awhile that German industry was more friendly with the English than the French as to upset the latter. Was the Ruhr enterprise intended, among other things, as a hint to the Germans that they'd got to tie up with France, whether they liked it or not? And are the Germans beginning to do, like cold-blooded business men who don't let sentimental considerations weigh with them for long against hard facts?

Indications point that way.

Also all account agree that France is likely to recognize the revolution, any government of Russia soon, with which, by the way, England isn't as friendly as she was. French influence?

At any rate, it's certain that France is doing everything she knows how to strengthen herself, politically and commercially, throughout continental Europe, as fast as she can.

It's equally certain that England doesn't like the French policy a bit.

New Alignment Glimpsed

THE queerest feature of the whole thing, just at the moment, is that there's an underlying sense of better relations between France and Germany, despite the former's invasion of the latter's soil, and in spite also of the supposedly threatened German rising against the French, than exists today between England and France.

Just after the war, there were a lot of folk who had an idea no Anglo-Saxon ever would like a German again. But people who recalled how past enemies, seemingly just as bitter, had been forgotten with the lapse of time, were heard occasionally to remark that, after all, you couldn't tell—it wouldn't surprise them to see the English and Germans fighting side by side a few years hence.

Nobody said, however, that it wouldn't be surprising to see the Germans and French fighting side by side.

For all that, the latter looks a good deal likelier than the former does—or that French and English would be seen fighting side by side again in a long time to come.

It may seem like a queer time to predict a European continental combination, with France and Germany both in it and Great Britain, it's not, nevertheless. Besides, being logical, it's indicated by the trend of events.

Aside from her own overseas dependencies, the friend to which England is working to bind herself to is the United States.

The document is presented in parallel columns, the text of the Lausanne document being faced with the modifications proposed by the Turks which chiefly are in the economic section and the capitulations provisions.

The covering note describes the concluding days of deliberation at Lausanne and defends the Turkish position in refusing to sign without discussion, a treaty containing clauses framed in language different from that agreed upon previously in the conference sub-commissions.

PARIS, March 10.—(By the Associated Press)—Direct negotiations between foreign concession holders and the Ottoman government are considered as a means of disposing of the most difficult problem between the allies and Turks—the economic clauses of the treaty which the Turks refused to sign at Lausanne.

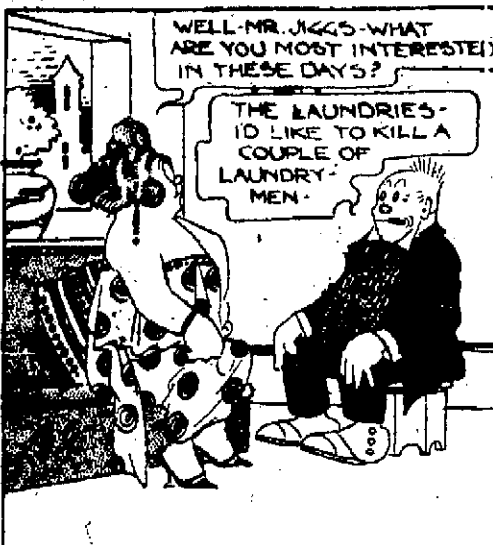

It is understood here that a considerable number of English companies already have inaugurated conversations with the Ankara government to fix their future status in accordance with the new Turkish laws.

"Hitting High Spots" At Sun Tonight

The Jack Ball Stock Players have again scored a big triumph with the last half of the week's program, "Hitting the High Spots," which closes with tonight's performance. This interesting as well as a novelty comedy swept the audiences each performance right off their feet. All the raffle tickets in the play were well rendered and brought forth much applause. It has been sometime since a play with as many features has been seen on a local stage. Beginning Monday night, "Her Unborn Child," the comedy drama sensation, will be the attraction at the Sun for three days. From the fifth on might be led to believe this play is of a risqué nature, but it is not. On the contrary, it depicts one of the most beautiful stories of motherhood that has ever been put into play form. The author has taken a delicate subject and handled it in a masterly manner such as not to offend any broad-minded person. In addition to the regular Tuesday matinee, a special matinee will be given Wednesday for ladies only. No gentlemen will be admitted at the Wednesday matinee. Miss Lela Hill will deliver a short lecture to the ladies on motherhood at this performance. The comedy vein in the bill is wholesome and entertaining which relieves the more dramatic moments of the play.

Better Than Calomel

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute
Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So, do strong laxatives. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place. Headaches, "dizziness," and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "foggy" and "heavy." They clear the clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. See and Buy—Advertisement.

Window Glass
A small boy in country school was asked by the teacher to pronounce a word which she had written upon the blackboard. The word was W-i-n-d-o-w G-l-a-s-s. Upon his replying that he could not do so she remarked: "O, yes, you can. What is it you have in the windows at home?" "Oh," says he, "I know now. W-i-n-d-o-w G-l-a-s-s. Dad's old breeches." Window glass of all sizes.

TURKEY'S ADVANTAGE

IF the allies, Great Britain and France in particular, were co-operating more closely in international affairs, the Angora government would not so cockily reject the Lausanne treaty and call upon its diplomatic adversaries to draft a substitute on terms of its own choosing. Yet there is this to be said for the position the Turks have assumed: The western powers having met them on grounds of equality they reasonably object to be treated as a conquered nation. In the long run they will not be able to maintain this position unless the worst imaginable result of French occupation of German industrial regions is realized. But for the moment they have the advantage. They are inviting the powers to renew negotiations with them. Acceptance will depend on whether those invited regard the present situation favorable to them in trading around the table. Whatever course is pursued, though, the Turkish problem will not be settled finally until it is settled right.

There is no reason to believe that the political revolution in Turkey has altered Turkish character or changed Turkish ideals. The Turks are no more to be trusted now than before the war. Restored to an equality with the advanced nations there will be nothing but their worthless promises to hold them to contracts made. The alternative to thus recognizing them is to dictate terms of victors to vanquished and hold them to prescribed obligations by force. At present this is out of the question, since recognition already has been granted in large degree. It is this which makes the Angora government's demands as an independent sovereign state reasonable.

Turkey will be safe as long as the situation as regards Germany remains unchanged. French pre-occupation along the Rhine will prevent Premier Poincare venturing far in the Near East. This would make opportunity for Great Britain there, but for the fact that the demands of the German situation cannot be forecast.

ACHIEVEMENT MAIN REWARD

SIR RONALD ROSS, who himself has done enough to have received the Nobel prize for medicine, takes a pessimistic view of the reward likely to accrue to one who makes a discovery of great benefit to mankind. He expressed the belief that were a complete cure for tuberculosis to be found the discoverer would by no means have a guarantee against dying in the poorhouse. He cites two or three whose services in revealing the source of disease, or means of prevention and cure, have been inadequately recompensed.

If the purpose of investigation and research is primarily for the purpose of gaining wealth some other occupation may offer better chances. A cure for cancer would prove a boon to humanity beyond anything else, possibly, in the realm of medicine, but a lifetime might be spent in search without appreciable progress and without tangible reward yet be worth while, too. To the genuine scientist pursuit and attainment are the real purposes and material reward is but incidental. It is right that service should have recognition and recompense, but it would be sad were these the sole objects in investigation. Suppose the discoverer of a tuberculosis cure received $1,000,000 in cold cash; if he gloried in that rather than in what his achievement could do for millions of sufferers he would be unworthy of the fame that might attach to his name.

There are some professions which it were well to preserve uncommercialized. In any great discovery of benefit to mankind the satisfaction of accomplishment is worth far more than anything else which may be gained.

Too many overlook the fact that the bill of rights is payable as well as receivable.

A pedestrian may have few rights, but he does have the privilege of taking a chance.

It is averred that there is nothing to show that man is more than 500,000 years old. As a matter of courtesy how old is woman is not discussed in public.

It is asserted now that the Queen of Sheba flew in an airship given her by King Solomon. Well, she has long had the reputation for being something of a high flyer.

The reckless one who used to lay the whip on Old Doblin now steps on the gas.

If man knew as much about himself as some of the neighbors try to learn, he would be wiser.

March flirts with winter-tired mankind, and mankind flirts with 17 varieties of spring sickness.

One of the risks of letting well enough alone is that somebody will come along and improve on it.

New York-Day-By-Day

BY G. G. McINTIRE

NEW YORK, March 10—Bert Savoy is the "hostess" in a cabaret. A somewhat ridiculous effort on the part of cabaret managers to provide something new. Savoy is a female impersonator who, with his partner, Jay Brennan, has appeared in sundry musical melanges.

The clamor of the intellectuals for diversion is insistent. The ordinary cafe cannot exist with the old cafe atmosphere. In the East Fifties a former general of the Russian Imperial guards has thrown open an exotic eating place.

He struts about in regal attire and they come from the four corners of the town to see him. The cafe is known today, not by its atmosphere or patronage, but by the artist who is the attraction.

Thus Gilda Gray packs them in at the Rendezvous, Donaldina at Gypsy Land, dusky Florence Mills at the Plantation, Paul Whiteman at the Palais Royal and Yvonne George at the Club Gallant.

There is an audacious cynicism about the cabaret artist these days. His method is the intimate contact. He walks about the dance floor poking fun at the patrons.

Said one the other night, "Will the bootleggers stop taking orders for five minutes, please. I want to talk." And, when the noise failed to stop, instantly he shouted, "I don't care to talk to a lot of third-rate bums," and walked off.

It is, to say the least, a rather advanced idea to be met and received in a cafe by a man dressed as a woman, but Savoy is doing it and every night there is a crowd waiting for him to come to the cafe from the theatre, where he appears.

The female impersonator, by the way, is always a drawing card in vaudeville, yet he rarely gets more than a light sprinkle of applause. Vaudeville academicians at one time were contemplating their banishment from the hills. They tried an experiment which proved to their satisfaction that the impersonator drew patronage. It is double true when the artist wears many different and gorgeous gowns. The ladies want to see how he does it.

And vaudeville reminds me that at the Palace one day recently I saw The Four Mortons and Collins and Hart. They are doing the same acts, with little variation, that I saw them do more years ago than I care to confess. Sam Morton is past sixty and his wife is a silver-haired lady almost as old.

At the side of the Palace, in a little alleyway that leads to the stage door, the performers gather in costume between acts. Here they smoke and chat. The frankly curious crowd that gathers at the barred entrance to peer at them is sometimes entertained by little impromptu skits that the players stage. It is quite a contrast from the haughty legitimate stars who appear so terrifically bored at the carousals that gather to see them leave after the play.

There is a touch of romance browsing through a vaudeville program. One learns that Madam Roma has received a fresh supply of detachable eyelashes for the "haut monde." Kuba will be glad to welcome his old customers. He is a specialist in mole removing. And "There are brains in your legs!"—the director of a stage dancing school tells you so. "Your feet will carry you to stardom and engrave your name in letters of fire at the top of the theatrical world—Broadway," he further blurbs. And don't forget Larlesque. He was once a "dresser" and has now opened a rottiesserie for "my ever loyal following." (Copyright 1923, By The McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

Doc Koko's KOLUM

Her Photograph

Maud's face, gold framed, stands where the sunshine falls; A scrap of paper bearing smile and glance, The lure of curls where soft lights dance. Persistently her past sweet charm recalls, My heart paints in the heaven blue of her eyes. The rose of her lips. Enough to hold This likeness of her cheeks' soft mold, Where such enchanting shadow lies.

It stands upon my office desk all day, Amid the hurrying of the place, And calms me with an arch and smiling face. She was my wife before she went away, And left me only this with which to laugh And weep and conjure back the past, Her sun kissed face, here prisoned fast. Upon this paper scrap—her photograph. —Josephine Hemslay.

What He Was Chasing

A near-sighted man lost his hat in a strong wind. He gave chase, but every time he thought he was catching up with it, it was whisked from under his hand. A woman screamed from a nearby farm house:
"What are you doing there?"
He mildly replied that he was trying to retrieve his hat.
"Your hat?" exclaimed the woman. "There it is over there under that stone wall; that's our little black hen."

A Good Suggestion

The woman was trying to edge her way into a crowded train. Immediately in back of her were two flapjacks. One, in particular, pushed and shoved with unnecessary violence. She stamped angrily at the heels of my white shoes. She put a fist between my shoulder blades and forced me forward onto an elderly lady in front of me. And she seemed to be doing this unthinkingly; she was talking the while, in rather a loud voice.

"I know, I really don't know what to take up. What I want to be, 'n all," she was saying.
The train door banged. I turned to her, and with a sycophantic smile, said:
